Piedmont Community College Dean Receives Fulbright Award

Dawn E. Langley, Dean of General Education and Developmental Studies at Piedmont Community College, Roxboro, North Carolina, has been awarded a Fulbright Scholar grant to research at the University of Modern Languages in Islamabad, Pakistan during the 2009 academic year, according to the United States Department of State and the J. William Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board. Langley will conduct research on creative women in educational leadership positions in Islamabad during her two months' stay in the city.

Langley, a resident of Durham and former resident of Raleigh (former high school English instructor at Franklin Academy in Wake Forest) is one of approximately 1,100 U.S. faculty and professionals who will travel abroad through the Fulbright U.S. Scholar Program. She graduated from Everett High School, Everett, MA (as Dawn Brander); as well as Bunker Hill Community College, Boston, MA; and Johnson State College and Vermont College, Vermont (as Dawn Reno). For the past twenty-five years, she has been an educator in Vermont (Johnson State College), Florida (Keiser College, Lake City Community College and Daytona Beach Community College) and North Carolina (Franklin Academy High School). Currently, she is a PhD. candidate in The Union Institute and University Ph.D. in Interdisciplinary Studies program. She is also the author of twenty-nine books under the pseudonym Dawn E. Reno.

The Fulbright Program, America's flagship international educational exchange program, is sponsored by the United States Department of State, Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs.

Since its establishment in 1946 under legislation introduced by the late Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, the Fulbright Program has provided approximately 286,500 people – 108,160 Americans who have studied, taught or researched abroad and 178,340 students, scholars and teachers from other countries who have engaged in similar activities in the United States – with the opportunity to observe each others' political, economic, educational and cultural institutions, to exchange ideas and to embark on joint ventures of importance to the general welfare of the world's inhabitants. The Program operates in over 155 countries worldwide.

Recipients of Fulbright awards are selected on the basis of academic or professional achievement, as well as demonstrated leadership potential in their fields. Among the thousands of prominent Fulbright alumni are: Muhammad Yunus, Managing Director and Founder, Grameen Bank, and recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize in 2006; Javier Solana, Foreign Policy Chief, European Union; Ruth Simmons, President, Brown University; Craig Barrett, Chairman of the Board, Intel Corporation; Shamshad Akhtar, the first woman to hold the position of Governor, State Bank of Pakistan; Alejandro Jara, Deputy Director-General, World Trade Organization; Raoul Cantero, Justice, Florida Supreme Court; Renee Fleming, soprano; Gish Jen, Writer; Daniel Libeskind, Architect; Aneesh Raman, CNN Middle East Correspondent; and Sibusiso Sibisi, President and CEO, Council for Scientific and Industrial Research in South Africa..

Fulbright recipients are among over 40,000 individuals participating in U.S. Department of State exchange programs each year. For more than sixty years, the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs has supported programs that seek to promote mutual understanding and respect between the people of the United States and the people of other countries. The Fulbright U.S. Scholar Program is administered by the Council for International Exchange of Scholars.
